APACC Privacy Statement

APACC will not sell or otherwise share our membership information with any third parties, including partners, advertisers or third party service providers. We do not sell or rent our membership information to third parties of any kind for any reason. APACC members have password protected access to the contact information of all members.

APACC has no control over and makes no representations concerning the privacy practices or content provided by any of our membership or third parties linked to our Web site.

APACC maintains an online member database that contains member profile information, as well as a record of member's registrations for events. The information in these databases is used by authorized APACC staff members' communication purpose that may include: process member benefits, renewal notices, and announcements; and responds to member inquiries. Member records are maintained as long as an individual or company is an APACC member.

Personal information is stored in a relational database and standard security methods are used to protect it. Commercial information (such as credit card numbers) is obtained using our secure Web server. We do not store complete credit card information on our machines.

Electronic Communication

APACC does not rent or sell email addresses. APACC may use email addresses to contact members to answer member questions or to acknowledge the receipt of membership applications, to send membership renewal notices, and to send occasional announcements about APACC events to those members who have not opted out of receiving such announcements.
